Charges have been filed by state motor police officers against drivers involved in two automobile accidents Tuesday evening in two county boroughs. No one was injured in the accidents, but damage of about $350 was reported to three of the four vehicles involved.

At 7:15 o'clock Tuesday evening at the eastern edge of Fairfield, cars operated by R. Thomas Adams, 16, Gettysburg R. 3, and John Zeigler, 50, Hagerstown R. 5, collided. Adams was traveling east and Zeigler in the opposite direction when the machines sideswiped.

An information has been filed before Justice of the Peace Howard L. Harbaugh, Fairfield, against Zeigler, charging him with driving in the center of the highway. Zeigler paid his fine of $10 and the costs of the case. Officer George S. Harleman, the investigating officer, filed the charge.

Zeigler's car was damaged to the extent of about $200 while damage to the Adams machine was placed at about $100.

Crash in York Springs

Officers from the local substation also investigated a collision at the intersection of High and Main streets in York Springs Tuesday evening about 5:35 o'clock when automobiles operated by Alfred M. Delp, 22, Idaville, and W. H. Hayberger, 71, Gardners R. 3, collided.

Delp is reported to have been driving north on Main street when Hayberger approached from the west on High street. Hayberger turned north onto Main street and as he had about completed the turn, Delp topped the crest of a low-grade near the crossing and struck the rear of a wooden platform at the back of Hayberger's machine.

After completing his investigation of the accident, Officer Glenn F. Henry of the local substation laid information against Delp for reckless driving.

Damage to the Delp car was estimated at $50. It had to be towed from the scene of the collision. Hayberger's machine was undamaged.

CHINESE RUSH
NEW TROOPS TO SOOCHOW AREA

Tokyo, Nov. 17 (AP).—A Japanese navy communiqué said today that Japan's war ace of the Shanghai front, Captain Sadao Sherasio, sacrificed his life in the "traditional manner" of Japanese airmen by deliberately crashing his bomb-laden plane into a Chinese position at Soochow.

Shanghai, Nov. 17 (AP).—Heavily reinforced Chinese armies struck back at Japanese invaders today along the "Hindenburg" line defending Nanking, some 125 miles away.

Thousands of fresh troops from the interior marched eastward to bolster Chinese forces southeast of the capital. At the same time, civilians fled from Nanking and the evacuation of government offices was under way.

Chinese commanders said the counter-attack had permitted them to form new lines and declared:

"We will not capitulate or compromise with Japan. We will fight to the last ditch."

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek had several hundred thousand trained troops at his disposal. A force of 150,000 Szechwan province warriors arrived at Nanking from the upper reaches of the mighty Yangtze.

In North China the famous communique Eighth army harassed communication lines and garrisons of the Japanese.

Japanese forces pushed southward in Shansi province, the main body heading for Lingfeng, new seat of the provincial government after the evacuation of Taiyuanfu. Civil departments of the Chinese government are to be moved to Hankow, Changsha and Chungking.

Judge John E. Fox, who handed down the order, fixed Monday morning for a final hearing in the suit brought by a group of sportsmen from Elk, Cameron and Clinton counties, who challenged the constitutionality of the commission's order.

Fifty thousand sportsmen have paid $2 apiece for the right to hunt antlerless deer in 54 counties on November 25, 26 and 27.

STATE SUPREME COURT TO HEAR
NIXON'S APPEAL

The Nixon divorce case will be aired again—this time in the state Supreme Court.

J. Donald Swope, Esq., today received notice from the prothonotary of the Supreme Court for the eastern district, that his petition for permission to take an appeal from the decision of the state Superior Court, handed down last July, has been allowed.

The appeal will be taken formally after which the case will be numbered on the Supreme Court calendar and it will finally be listed for argument—probably in Philadelphia in February or March.

Today's notice marked the end of a six-week legal battle which opened on October 2 when Swope filed a petition asking for additional time in which to file a petition for the right to take an appeal from the Superior Court ruling. Five days later the Supreme Court granted a 10-day extension of time and Swope filed the petition asking to be allowed to appeal. A copy of his petition was served on E. V. Bulleit, Esq., who filed an answer with the Supreme Court. Bulleit is counsel for Annette (Finneron) Nixon, wife No. 2 of the army captain who is a native of Gettysburg.

Today's notice was the first indication that the appeal was to be allowed.

In July of this year the Superior Court of Pennsylvania affirmed the opinion of Judge W. C. Sheely that was handed down in 1936 in which the Adams county jurist set aside the divorce decree granted Captain Thomas Hay Nixon, native of Gettysburg, from Mrs. Annette Pauline (Finneron) Nixon, his second wife. The decree was granted in Adams county court in 1935.

The opinion handed down by Judge Sheely stated that "the Adams county court did not have jurisdiction in the case because the libellant (Captain Nixon) was not an actual bona fide resident of the state of Pennsylvania at the time the divorce action was instituted and had not been a resident for the year immediately prior thereto."

Shortly after Captain Nixon was granted the divorce from his second wife in Adams county courts in 1935, he married a third time. His bride was Miss Anne Cooke, Chevy Chase, Maryland. Twins have been born to this union.

COUNTIANS HEAR
CONSERVATION
PLANS ON FARMS

The board of directors of the Adams county Agricultural Conservation association is holding a two-day conference in Carlisle in connection with the 1938 agricultural conservation program. The sessions opened on Tuesday.

The speakers at the meetings include national and state officials of the agricultural conservation program who discussed the aims and operation of the 1938 program both as regards its national aspects and as it applies to this county.

Among those attending the sessions are: H. F. Snyder, Littlestown; John B. Peters, Gardners; M. T. Walter, Biglerville; John W. Black, Gettysburg; S. R. Kohler, New Oxford, and Cecil Dunbar, Fairfield.

A modification of the 1937 agricultural Conservation program gives cooperating farmers added opportunity to qualify for payments this year by preparing to seed soil-conserving crops in 1938.

Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace recently approved a change in the program in Pennsylvania, making December 1, 1937, instead of October 31, the latest date for applying lime and super-phosphate to land that will be seeded to grasses and legumes next spring.

The change was recommended by the state committee

W. S. Hagar, state executive officer, says that the shortage of lime during summer and early fall made postponement of the closing date desirable. "Farmers in many parts of the state," he says, "were not able to get all the lime they needed, and were delayed in preparing land for 1938 seedings. Adding a month to the time limit gives farmers a chance to use this valuable soil-building practice without sacrificing the payments which the program provides for it."

FRUIT PROBLEMS TO BE DISCUSSED

Adams county fruit growers are expected to act upon a number of matters of importance to their organization at the regular November meeting to be held Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Biglerville high school building.

The association will decide whether a fruit growers' banquet will be held again as was done last March and they also will discuss a proposal on the selection of an apple judging team of county youths to represent Adams county in state competition at the Pennsylvania Farm Show in Harrisburg next January.

A report of the marketing program is to be heard and a general discussion of fall orchard management problems will be given by growers as time permits.

Reported severe infestation of cedar rust on apples this fall has placed on the meeting program consideration of cedar tree removal efforts.

Notices of the meeting mailed to fruitmen earlier this week announced that the session would be held in the Biglerville auditorium, the regular meeting place. The change in meeting place was necessitated because of the fact a Biglerville high school play will be given in the auditorium Thursday evening.

Two Plays Given at
H. S. for Book Week

Two plays were given during the assembly period at Gettysburg high school this morning on the theme of Book Week, which is being observed this week throughout the nation.

The plays were "Reading" and "The Lives of the Bronte Sisters." The Bronte sisters were well known writers in the nineteenth century.

Several book exhibits have been prepared and installed in business places in Gettysburg. Children's books are displayed in the Delecto and Blocher's windows. Books pertaining to art are shown in Philip Bickle's window, while posters have been placed in the lobby of the Majestic theatre.

The art exhibit was prepared by the art department under the direction of Miss Ann Mumper, while other displays were put in place by the high school Library club.

Another activity during Book Week is the publication each day in The Gettysburg Times of an article about books. These reports appear under the heading of "Reading—The Magic Highway to Adventure."

ANTI-LYNCHING
FILIBUSTER MAY TIE UP SENATE

Washington, Nov. 17 (AP).—A southern filibuster against anti-lynching legislation upset the Senate program today, shattering Democratic lines almost at the start of the special session.

The apparently unorganized attempt to block the measure, passed by the House last summer, quickly gained momentum after Senator Wagner (D-N. Y.) sought Tuesday to call the bill up for debate.

Senator Connally (D-Texas) led off. He talked at length and then sparred for time by having a clerk read a 1935 address by Justice Hugo L. Black, (then an Alabama Senator) opposing a federal anti-lynching law.

A half dozen southern Democrats were ready to follow Connally. They indicated they would carry on the debate for a few days, perhaps until the Senate agriculture committee completes its farm bill.

Democratic Leader Barkley had tried unsuccessfully to persuade anti-lynching sponsors to let the government reorganization bill have (Continued on Second Page)

TRADING BULLS

A jury, in court here Tuesday afternoon, acquitted John S. Galbraith and Thomas Corwell, both of Gettysburg, of a charge of fraudulent conversion which had been filed by Ray Schriver, of near Gettysburg. The verdict stated that the costs of the case should be divided equally between Corwell and Schriver.

Schriver had charged the pair with removing two young bulls from a pasture field at his farm on May 25 following an afternoon of dickering during which time Schriver insisted on a cash sale and Corwell and Galbraith wanted to trade a "blind" horse on the cattle.

Schriver said he was not at home when the cattle were taken and that he had refused to trade. Corwell and Galbraith said the trade had been agreed upon. Schriver said his insistence that the cattle be returned had accomplished nothing.

The jury which deliberated about an hour included: John P. Elcholtz, Gettysburg; Ergie Tuekey, Menallen township; Murray B. Frazee, Gettysburg; C. E. Guise, Arendtsville; Allen Robert, Franklin township; Ira Plank, Gettysburg; Vincent Eckenrode, Huntingdon township; Bruce Biesacker, Franklin township; George Robert, Littlestown; Edward Oyer, Gettysburg; John Warner, Union township, and E. A. Deardorff, Tyrone township.

DE SCHWEINITZ RESIGNATION

Harrisburg, Nov. 17 (AP).—The resignation of Karl De Schweinitz as state Secretary of Public Assistance has been on Governor Earle's desk for six weeks, an attache of the Governor's office said today. Smith, other former picket captain convicted Tuesday on a charge of inciting to riot during the strike.

Trial of the Groft action opened late Tuesday afternoon with Smith taking the stand as the first state's witness. He repeated his account given at the preliminary hearing in the case, stating that Groft followed him to his parked car on York street after work on the evening of October 20 and there, after preventing him from closing the door and inquiring if he wasn't "turning yellow," Groft struck him (Smith) under the left eye. Harrisburg, Nov. 17 (AP).—The Dauphin county court restrained the state Game commission from allowing a special three-day open season for antlerless deer during the Thanksgiving week-end.

Judge John E. Fox, who handed down the order, fixed Monday morning for a final hearing in the suit brought by a group of sportsmen from Elk, Cameron and Clinton counties, who challenged the constitutionality of the commission's order.

Fifty thousand sportsmen have paid $2 apiece for the right to hunt antlerless deer in 54 counties on November 25, 26 and 27.

STATE SUPREME COURT TO HEAR NIXON'S APPEAL

The Nixon divorce case will be aired again—this time in the state Supreme Court.

J. Donald Swope, Esq., today received notice from the prothonotary of the Supreme Court for the eastern district, that his petition for permission to take an appeal from the decision of the state Superior Court, handed down last July, has been allowed.

The appeal will be taken formally after which the case will be numbered on the Supreme Court calendar and it will finally be listed for argument—probably in Philadelphia in February or March.

Today's notice marked the end of a six-week legal battle which opened on October 2 when Swope filed a petition asking for additional time in which to file a petition for the right to take an appeal from the Superior Court ruling. Five days later the Supreme Court granted a 10-day extension of time and Swope filed the petition asking to be allowed to appeal. A copy of his petition was served on E. V. Bulleit, Esq., who filed an answer with the Supreme Court. Bulleit is counsel for Annette (Finneron) Nixon, wife No. 2 of the army captain who is a native of Gettysburg.

Today's notice was the first indication that the appeal was to be allowed.

In July of this year the Superior Court of Pennsylvania affirmed the opinion of Judge W. C. Sheely that was handed down in 1936 in which the Adams county jurist set aside the divorce decree granted Captain Thomas Hay Nixon, native of Gettysburg, from Mrs. Annette Pauline (Finneron) Nixon, his second wife. The decree was granted in Adams county court in 1935.

The opinion handed down by Judge Sheely stated that "the Adams county court did not have jurisdiction in the case because the libellant (Captain Nixon) was not an actual bona fide resident of the state of Pennsylvania at the time the divorce action was instituted and had not been a resident for the year immediately prior thereto."

Shortly after Captain Nixon was granted the divorce from his second wife in Adams county courts in 1935, he married a third time. His bride was Miss Anne Cooke, Chevy Chase, Maryland. Twins have been born to this union.

COUNTIANS HEAR CONSERVATION PLANS ON FARMS

The board of directors of the Adams county Agricultural Conservation association is holding a two-day conference in Carlisle in connection with the 1938 agricultural conservation program. The sessions opened on Tuesday.

The speakers at the meetings include national and state officials of the agricultural conservation program who discussed the aims and operation of the 1938 program both as regards its national aspects and as it applies to this county.

Among those attending the sessions are: H. F. Snyder, Littlestown; John B. Peters, Gardners; M. T. Walter, Biglerville; John W. Black, Gettysburg; S. R. Kohler, New Oxford, and Cecil Dunbar, Fairfield.

A modification of the 1937 agricultural Conservation program gives cooperating farmers added opportunity to qualify for payments this year by preparing to seed soil-conserving crops in 1938.

Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace recently approved a change in the program in Pennsylvania, making December 1, 1937, instead of October 31, the latest date for applying lime and super-phosphate to land that will be seeded to grasses and legumes next spring.

The change was recommended by the state committee

W. S. Hagar, state executive officer, says that the shortage of lime during summer and early fall made postponement of the closing date desirable. "Farmers in many parts of the state," he says, "were not able to get all the lime they needed, and were delayed in preparing land for 1938 seedings. Adding a month to the time limit gives farmers a chance to use this valuable soil-building practice without sacrificing the payments which the program provides for it."

FRUIT PROBLEMS TO BE DISCUSSED

Adams county fruit growers are expected to act upon a number of matters of importance to their organization at the regular November meeting to be held Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Biglerville high school building.

The association will decide whether a fruit growers' banquet will be held again as was done last March and they also will discuss a proposal on the selection of an apple judging team of county youths to represent Adams county in state competition at the Pennsylvania Farm Show in Harrisburg next January.

A report of the marketing program is to be heard and a general discussion of fall orchard management problems will be given by growers as time permits.

Reported severe infestation of cedar rust on apples this fall has placed on the meeting program consideration of cedar tree removal efforts.

Notices of the meeting mailed to fruitmen earlier this week announced that the session would be held in the Biglerville auditorium, the regular meeting place. The change in meeting place was necessitated because of the fact a Biglerville high school play will be given in the auditorium Thursday evening.

Two Plays Given at H. S. for Book Week

Two plays were given during the assembly period at Gettysburg high school this morning on the theme of Book Week, which is being observed this week throughout the nation.

The art exhibit was prepared by the art department under the direction of Miss Ann Munper, while other displays were put in place by the high school library club.

Another activity during Book Week is the publication each day in The Gettysburg Times of an article about books. These reports appear under the heading of "Reading—The Magic Highway to Adventure."

PICKET DURING STRIKE HERE IS CONVICTED ON ASSAULT CHARGE

Percy Groft, East Lincoln avenue extended, picket captain during the recent furniture factory strike here, was convicted of assaulting a non-striker on October 20 in a verdict returned by a jury in Adams county court here this morning. Groft probably will be sentenced on Saturday.

The charge against Groft had been filed by George W. Smith, South Washington street, who had returned to work on the day of the assault. Smith was represented by J. Francis Yake, Jr., Esq., special prosecutor in the case. Groft was represented by Richard A. Brown, Esq., counsel for Albert W. Smith, other former picket captain convicted Tuesday on a charge of inciting to riot during the strike.

Trial of the Groft action opened late Tuesday afternoon with Smith taking the stand as the first state's witness. He repeated his account given at the preliminary hearing in the case, stating that Groft followed him to his parked car on York street after work on the evening of October 20 and there, after preventing him from closing the door and inquiring if he wasn't "turning yellow," Groft struck him (Smith) under the left eye. Traces of the mark under Smith's eye were visible as he testified.

Groft Must Pay Costs
Smith said he did not return the blow and drove away in his car. Groft, whose testimony was corroborated by two fellow-strikers, said that Smith had delivered the first blow and that his punch at Smith's eye was only in retaliation.

In addition to facing sentence on the assault count, Groft must pay the costs of the case against Smith, which was ignored by the grand jury last week. Groft had filed a counter charge of assault and battery against Smith, but the grand jury found "no true bill."

The Groft jury follows: W. C. Alwine, New Oxford; H. A. Brough, Lattimore township; J. C. Gallagher, Franklin township; Samuel Irvin, Franklin township; Mrs. Alice Kugler, Liberty township; Claude Lawrence, Mt. Pleasant township; George Motter, Mt. Joy township; Thomas Myers, Germany township; Mrs. Frances Neely, Fairfield; Robert Watson, Hamiltonban township; Mrs. Annie Wentz, Gettysburg, and Richard Wither, Germany township.

2 Tried for Larceny
This afternoon the case of Alma R. Wirt and her son, A. W. Wirt, Straban township, both charged with larceny, was on trial as the end of the criminal session came in sight. Completion of criminal trials was predicted for late this afternoon or Thursday morning. Trial of civil cases will probably open Thursday.

The prosecutor in the Wirt case is C. Edwin Aughinbaugh, Straban township. Testimony this morning revealed that Aughinbaugh and his housekeeper were occupying one side of the house of the George B. Aughinbaugh farm in Straban township on September 17, and the Wirts lived in the other. Aughinbaugh accuses the defendants of stealing clothing and canned goods from his side of the house and declared that a toothpick he had placed in the latch of a door connecting the two quarters had been dislodged and was evidence that his living quarters were entered by the Wirts. A search of the Wirt rooms revealed articles similar to those missing on the other side of the house.

Court Directs Verdict

The defendants deny the theft charge, stating that they had purchased the canned goods and had no knowledge how the articles of clothing belonging to Aughinbaugh had come into their rooms.

One case was disposed of quickly this morning when the court directed a verdict of not guilty for George E. Livingston, near Aspers, charged with a serious offense by Charlotte Crawford, also of near Aspers. The verdict was directed at the petition of E. V. Bulleit, Esq., counsel for Livingston, after the Commonwealth's witnesses had testified.

An alias subpoena in divorce was issued this morning at the order of the court in the case of Elizabeth Ann (Diehl) Warrington vs. Robert D. Warrington.

WASHINGTON IS CALLED FIRST MASTER FARMER

Mount Vernon, Va., Nov. 17 (AP)—President Roosevelt said today that George Washington's career made it "almost certain" the first President would have "favored present-day government action to aid farmers."

Washington, Mr. Roosevelt said, showed by his own words "that he considered agricultural production even in his time to be much more than a local matter."

President Roosevelt's remarks were delivered to presidents of land grant colleges and universities gathered at Washington's home in connection with the 75th anniversary of the establishment of the Agriculture department. Because the Chief Executive was confined to the White House with a tooth ailment, his remarks were read by Secretary Wallace.

The President, calling Washington the first "master farmer," said: "Knowing what we do of George Washington's belief in a national government strong enough to cope with the problems of his time, and his perception of the importance of agriculture as the foundation of our national life, we can be sure that if he had lived today he would have acted boldly to keep agriculture from going down to ruin."

"We can be sure that he would not have denied to agriculture advantages which government has so freely granted to industry. All his actions indicate that he would have supported farmers in programs of the type they have adopted."

"Just as he himself shifted from one-crop tobacco production to a balanced type of farming in order to save his soil, it seems almost certain that he would have favored government action to aid farmers as a group to bring their farming operations into balance."

"Let us resolve that we will be worthy of his great example. Let us resolve that as a nation we will not neglect the fertility of our soil or the integrity of our farm homes. Let us resolve that, now and always, the great art of husbandry shall have its rightful place in our American life."

Vatican City, Nov. 17 (AP)—Pope Pius will create five new cardinals at a consistory December 13.

Three will be Italians, one English and one French.

The Vatican announced the following are to be named:

Archbishops Giuseppe Pizzardo, Vatican undersecretary of state; Ermenegildo Pellegrinetti, nuncio to Yugoslavia; Giovanni Piazza, patriarch to Venice; Arthur Hinsley of Westminster cathedral in London, and Pierre Gerlier of Lyon.

The announcement was regarded as evidence the Pontiff believes his health will stand the strain of the elaborate ceremonies involved.

Petitions Court to End Alimony After 28 Years

Chicago, Nov. 17 (AP)—Friends of Tom Harmon were wont to liken his patience to that of Job, his resignation to that of a good timepiece.

For 48 years he worked as a mail clerk without a complaint. But 28 years of alimony payments have finally broken down the Harmon reserve.

He filed a petition Tuesday to vacate the alimony order under which he has paid more than $8,000 in installments of $25 on the first of each month for nearly three decades.

Harmon, now 65, said the marriage lasted 16 months and that a daughter, Josephine, was born three months after he and his wife separated.

START WORLD JAUNT
Boston, Nov. 17 (AP)—Charles Cox, 26-year-old Englishman, weighed anchor today aboard the 37-foot ketch Naomi, ready for a 50,000-mile, three-year cruise around the world. precedence. The latter is the only measure on the President's four-point program which is in shape for debate.

Once the filibuster was begun, however, Barkley and some proponents of the anti-lynching bill appeared disposed to let its foes talk themselves out. Senator Van Nuys (D-Indiana), a co-author of the measure, said at least 70 Senators would vote for it.

Chairman Smith (D-S. C.) said the agriculture committee would meet every day until it gets "some bill ready for the Senate." Secretary Wallace was asked to present his views today.

In the House, agriculture committee members still appeared quite a way from agreement on a farm proposal.

In an effort to bring action on wage-hour standards—another part of the administration program—Chairman Norton (D-N. J.) of the House Labor committee, was circulating a petition to dislodge the measure from the rules committee, where it was buried last session.

If 218 signatures are placed on the petition, the bill would be brought to the House floor automatically on December 13. The labor committee, meanwhile, was considering whether to recall the bill for revision. Leaders declared such a decision would prevent House debate this session.

Government reorganization measures suggested by Mr. Roosevelt were ready in both chambers, but House leaders decided against immediate debate.

The anti-lynching measure, which has aroused controversies for years, would make states and municipalities liable if lynchings took place in their jurisdiction. They would have to pay up to $10,000 to a lynching victim (if he were not killed) or to his next of kin.

BOY RETURNS HOME

New York, Nov. 17 (AP)—A 14-year-old hokey-playing boy came home early today, ending an 8-state alarm sent out by federal agents after his parents expressed fear the boy had been kidnapped. Wary from a day spent traveling about the city on subway and surface cars, the boy, Lawrence Goldworm, son of Matthew L. Goldworm, knitting goods company official, was surprised to find his home in an uproar over his disappearance.

FARMER'S DOLLAR "SHRINKS"

Washington, Nov. 17 (AP)—Agriculture department economists said today the farmer's dollar has shrunk 13 cents in buying power since the first of the year. In January the agricultural dollar was worth $1.01—that is, in terms of non-farm goods and services which it would have bought in 1910-14. Now that dollar is worth only 88 cents, the economists said, adding this was the lowest since 1935.

RENEW MURDER SEARCH

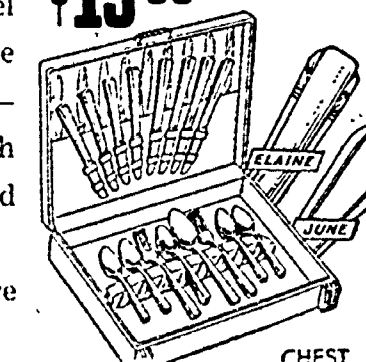

Chicago, Nov. 17 (AP)—An ex-convict's statement that robbers with whom he had associated killed Florence Thompson Castle because she "knew too much" about their crimes sent investigators on a renewed search today for the slayer of the comedy night club hostess. The 24-year-old woman was clubbed to death in her hotel room the night of June 29, 1936, while she lay in bed with her son, James, 7.

WASHINGTON IS CALLED FIRST MASTER FARMER

Mount Vernon, Va., Nov. 17 (AP).—President Roosevelt said today that George Washington's career made it "almost certain" the first President would have favored present-day "government action to aid farmers."

Washington, Mr. Roosevelt said, showed by his own words "that he considered agricultural production even in his time to be much more than a local matter."

President Roosevelt's remarks were delivered to presidents of land grant colleges and universities gathered at Washington's home in connection with the 75th anniversary of the establishment of the Agriculture department. Because the Chief Executive was confined to the White House with a tooth ailment, his remarks were read by Secretary Wallace.

The President, calling Washington the first "master farmer," said: "Knowing what we do of George Washington's belief in a national government strong enough to cope with the problems of his time, and his perception of the importance of agriculture as the foundation of our national life, we can be sure that if he had lived today he would have acted boldly to keep agriculture from going down to ruin."

"We can be sure that he would not have denied to agriculture advantages which government has so freely granted to industry. All his actions indicate that he would have supported farmers in programs of the type they have adopted."

"Just as he himself shifted from one-crop tobacco production to a balanced type of farming in order to save his soil, it seems almost certain that he would have favored government action to aid farmers as a group to bring their farming operations into balance."

"Let us resolve that we will be worthy of his great example. Let us resolve that as a nation we will not neglect the fertility of our soil or the integrity of our farm homes. Let us resolve that, now and always, the great art of husbandry shall have its rightful place in our American life."

Lower Food Prices Are in Prospect for Thanksgiving

Chicago, Nov. 17 (AP).—Housewives' Thanksgiving can start at the grocery store this year.

Wholesale food prices today indicated that a number of items for the traditional Thanksgiving Day feast will be priced lower than they were a year ago.

If the relationship of current wholesale food prices with those of mid-November, 1936, is maintained next week, more than half of the items that go into the typical holiday menu probably will sell lower despite the fact that the level of food costs recently was the highest in six years.

However, several important Thanksgiving Day specialties, such as the roasted bird in the center of the table may cost a little more. Turkeys, ducks, geese and other poultry are quoted higher than a year ago in the Chicago wholesale market but are lower than two years ago. Choice turkeys are up 17 per cent compared with last year. Best dressed turkeys have risen 14 cents per pound in the last week and now are quoted at 26½ to 27½ wholesale compared with 21 to 23 a year ago and 23 to 26 two years ago.

Cuts ranging up to 50 per cent are evident in such Thanksgiving Day staples as eggs, potatoes, apples, oranges, onions, tomatoes, lard, flour and some shelled nuts. Items which are up to 15 per cent higher include butter, beans, cheese and a few other trimmings.

Retail food prices have declined slightly the last month, with meats, fruits and vegetables in the lead.

During an open season that the state Game commission has decreed on antlered deer November 25 to 27.

Monroe county constables, meeting Tuesday night, announced that the courts would be asked to deputize between 500 and 550 for the woodland patrol.

The Monroe-Pike Sportsmen's association, which some time ago denounced the Game commission for scheduling the open season, began free distribution of 75,000 "no trespass" signs to hunting clubs, land owners and lessees.

Opposition of the Monroe-Pike sportsmen to the antlerless deer season coincided with similar action by other groups in the state.

Groups of hunters from Clinton, Cameron and Elk counties have asked the Dauphin county court at Harrisburg for an injunction to enjoin the Game commission from permitting the three-day hunting period.

London, Nov. 17 (AP).—Grand Duke Ludwig Von Hesse Bei Rhein, second cousin to Britain's King George, was married today to Miss Margaret Campbell Geddes in a private ceremony cloaked with the tragedy of an air crash that killed nearly all the bridegroom's family.

After the ceremony at St. Peter's church in Eton square, the mourning newlyweds started their honeymoon with a trip to Ostend, Belgium, to claim the bodies of the Duke's mother, brother and his brother's wife and sons, and take them to the family seat at Darmstadt, Germany.

They were among 11 persons killed Tuesday when a London-bound airliner crashed in flames near Ostend in a fog, as they were en route to London from the wedding. The plane hit a chimney.

Carlisle High Downs Maroons By 19-7, After Stiff Struggle

In a wildly exciting game in which the outcome remained in doubt until the final minutes of play, Carlisle high defeated the Gettysburg high school gridders at Carlisle in a conference game Tuesday afternoon, 19-7, before more than 1,500 fans many of whom were local fans.

The score is no indication of the closeness of the game which kept the crowd on its feet throughout the second half when many thrilling runs and plays developed.

Coach George Forney's outfit put up a grand brand of ball and held a 7-6 lead until the last period when the Green and White eleven tallied twice to clinch the contest.

Fred Wright, Maroon halfback, once again gave a great exhibition of passing, his deadly heaves producing the locals' touchdown and constantly producing long gains for the Forney-men.

Score Early

Carlisle scored its first touchdown near the middle of the first period by driving 55 yards for a score. Gettysburg received the kickoff and after reeling off a first down, Wright punted to Carlisle on the 15-yard line. Featured by long runs on the part of Lightner and Ernst, Carlisle reached the 2-yard line where the Maroons made a gallant goal line stand only to have Lightner plunge over on the last down. The entire Maroon forward wall broke through to block Quigley's placement kick for the extra point.

Early in the second period Coach Eby's warriors drove to the locals' 8-yard line for a first down. The Maroons again exhibited a brilliant bit of defensive work and held for three plays. On the last attempt a Carlisle pass was received behind the goal line by an ineligible receiver which gave the Maroons the ball on their own 20-yard line from where they launched their touchdown drive.

Passes Bring Score

Filling the air lanes with a barrage of passes that Carlisle found almost impossible to break up, the Maroons marched 80 yards for a score. A long pass, Wright to Swope, the latter making a beautiful catch while on the dead run, put the ball on the enemy's 25-yard line. Wright and Tate picked up several yards on running plays and another pass put the ball on the 8-yard stripe. Here Carlisle braced, but on the last play Wright flipped a pass to Maust over the goal line for a score. On a fake placement kick for the extra point by Everhart, Wright shot a fat pass to Maust to give the Maroons a 7-6 lead.

Neither team could score in the third period which was fought mostly in Gettysburg territory. Probably the best bit of defensive work by the Maroons was done in this quarter when early in the period Carlisle pounded out a first down on the 6-yard line. The Forney-men hurled back each attempt and after the fourth play was run Carlisle was still one yard from the goal line. On the last play Carlisle received a 15-yard penalty for revoking which enabled the Maroons to put the ball in play on their 16-yard mark.

With but nine minutes to go Carlisle scored its second touchdown. After reaching the 3-yard mark for a first down, two plays were halted before Lightner hit the line for a score. Lightner added the extra point on a line buck.

Interception Fatal

The locals came back fighting and threw a big scare into the Carlisle camp. Once again taking to the air after receiving the kickoff, Gettysburg passed its way to the Green and White 12-yard line in the waning minutes of the game. A long overhead thrust, Wright to Tate, put the ball on the home team's 30-yard line. A running play picked up eight yards and another pass, Everhart to Wright, produced a first down on the 12-yard line. The tide suddenly turned when Ernest grabbed one of Wright's passes on the 2-yard line and after shaking off several tacklers raced 98 yards for a score. The pass for the extra point was grounded.

The Maroons put up an excellent battle and exhibited some fine tackling and blocking. Wright, Dubbs, Deardorf, Ohler, Tate and Maust played particularly well.

PENNA. FAN MAIL HEAVY

Harrisburg—More than 17,000 letters and cards requesting Pennsylvania literature were received and answered by the State Publicity commission during October, Executive Secretary Orson N. Ritzman reported yesterday. "This response came following an extensive advertising campaign in daily and weekly newspapers, motor publications, and over the radio," he explained.

Replies and accompanying literature filled 105 U. S. mail sacks and weighed two and one-half tons.

War Admiral to Meet Seabiscuit At Santa Anita

Los Angeles, Nov. 17 (AP)—War Admiral, undefeated champion of the 3-year-olds, was entered today as a candidate for the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap, virtually assuring a meeting with Seabiscuit March 5.

Nominations do not close until December 1.

Man O' War's great son is about the biggest name in the turf world except in San Francisco, where they reserve such endearing terms for Seabiscuit.

The 'Biscuit, owned by Charles S. Howard, is en route to Santa Anita with prospects for one of the greatest races in history.

Seabiscuit, beaten by a nose by William Dupont's Rosemont in the 1937 Santa Anita, finished the season with $168,642 winnings but the Admiral retired undefeated in eight starts and with a comfortable nest-egg of $166,500.

The two horses never met. There will be some other good horses in the $100,000 affair, too—horses like Pompoon, Heefly, Top Row and Indian Broom.

22,000 CLAIMS FILED FOR SHARE OF GARRETT SUM

Philadelphia, Nov. 17 (AP)—Pennsylvania closed the door today on further claimants to the $20,000, 000 snuff fortune left by Mrs. Henrietta E. Garrett seven years ago. Nearly 1,000 claimants joined the "gold rush" in the last week before the state's legal deadline of seven years for filing estate claims.

This brought to approximately 22,000 the number of persons claiming kinship to the reclusive widow, whose will in 1921 disposed of only $62,500 of the immense holdings passed on to her by her husband, Walter E. Garrett, who died in 1895. "Make your will at once," the husband cautioned her in a letter shortly before his death.

Last month, Mrs. Garrett's body was disinterred at the request of her namesake, Mrs. Henrietta Garrett Ferguson, who asserted she witnessed a later will in 1924 that she thought a servant might have placed in the woman's coffin. Mrs. Ferguson was a beneficiary under the first will.

This quest ended the same as countless others—without success. The dismal home from which the widow seldom set foot in her last years had been searched minutely before.

A state Supreme Court ruling barred the claims of Walter Garrett's heirs a year ago. Professed relatives of the widow from all parts of the world have advanced their claims almost since the day of her death, November 16, 1930. Court-appointed examiners have heard about 800 of the claims.

Several claims have been filed by Adams county residents.

... AND TO SEE CALIFORNIA FIRST in the Rose Bowl on Jan. 1, 1938, was more than a dream in the minds of the Big Green warriors when they prepared for their last two games—against Cornell and Columbia. To carry the mail down the home stretch they were depending heavily on Robert MacLeod.

Would Make Every 7th Driver A Policeman to Curb Crashes

Harrisburg, Nov. 17 (AP)—A tall, gaunt, cheek-writer salesman who travels 45,000 miles a year in his car brought a scheme to end highway slaughter to the capital today.

He proposed a different kind of "vigilante" system—one out of every seven motorists a deputy patrolman with power to arrest his fellows on the road.

Harry W. Duve, of Lancaster, the salesman, came to the state house to see the Governor, Commissioner Percy W. Foote, of the state motor police, and other officials about his plan.

All were busy or out of town when Duve sought an audience, and he ended up by telling his plan to "put fear into motorists" to others. They included Captain Hubert W. Dutton, field representative of the Governor's Highway Safety council; Lieutenant Eimer Faber and Captain John R. Standford, of the motor police; J. R. Tomlinson, assistant to S. Weston Scott, director of the bureau of safety, and a newsman.

Duve suggested a fine of $25 for each offense. The alderman would keep $2, send the rest to the state. The state would take out $3 and shoot $20 back to the deputy who made the arrest.

The salesman did not think the $20 pay for arresting motorists would be abused. "The state could select capable motorists for deputies," he said.

GREEN INVITES G.O.P. WOMEN TO FORM POLICIES

Harrisburg, Nov. 17 (AP)—G. Edward Green, Republican state chairman, invited Republican women of Pennsylvania today to shoulder a greater responsibility in shaping and directing party policies.

In a prepared speech for the fifteenth annual convention of the Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women, Green declared that "already in a number of counties the women have almost as many persons registered in our party as the men do. In a few counties the women outnumber the men."

"Representing almost half the voting strength of the party and active in the work of the party, it seems to me the women should have a larger share in directing the party."

"We need the women's viewpoint in our home, our church, in our private and civil life. I believe we need you more in our politics. That is especially true at a time like this when politics is so intertwined with economics that affect the family life so intimately."

Green's declaration was in line with the women's own demands for parity with the men in formulating and carrying out party policies.

He said with the aid of the women the party would be victorious in next year's important elections.

A resolution that "industry, unhampered by government restrictions, would eventually absorb the unemployed and solve our social problem," was submitted to the council today.

It was one of a series that will be voted on Thursday in the final session.

A resolution "condemned" government price-fixing in commerce, industry and agriculture, and another condemned sit-down strikes as "illegal and un-American."

Other resolutions specified: "We believe in adequate relief for all those in need. We believe in a non-partisan, non-political administration of relief through the states and their sub-divisions."

"We believe in the right of employees to organize into a union of their own choice."

"We believe representative government can be accomplished only through the party system and that sound government is dependent upon strong parties. x x x"

"We believe in equal representation of men and women in party councils."

Women leaders from all sections of the state spoke at a dinner Tuesday night.

Who Said Pills? It's Fun to Keep "Regular"!

Is keeping "regular" a chore in your family? Does it mean over-stimulating your intestines with cathartics? Then here's good news! You can AVOID common constipation and cathartics, and have a grand time doing it!

Instead of abusing your intestines, eat a NATURAL laxative food. Instead of bad-tasting pills and liquids—ENJOY crunchy, toasted Kellogg's All-Brans with milk or cream and fruits. Or in All-Brans muffins, or All-Brans cookies.

All-Brans will KEEP you "regular" as the time-table—but it works so differently from harsh purgatives. It doesn't over-stimulate your intestines; it gives them TWO things they crave and need. First, All-Brans provides "bulk"—it absorbs water and softens like a sponge. This water-softened mass aids elimination. And next, the intestinal tonic Vitamin "B." All-Brans is a good source of this vitamin that tones up your intestinal tract.

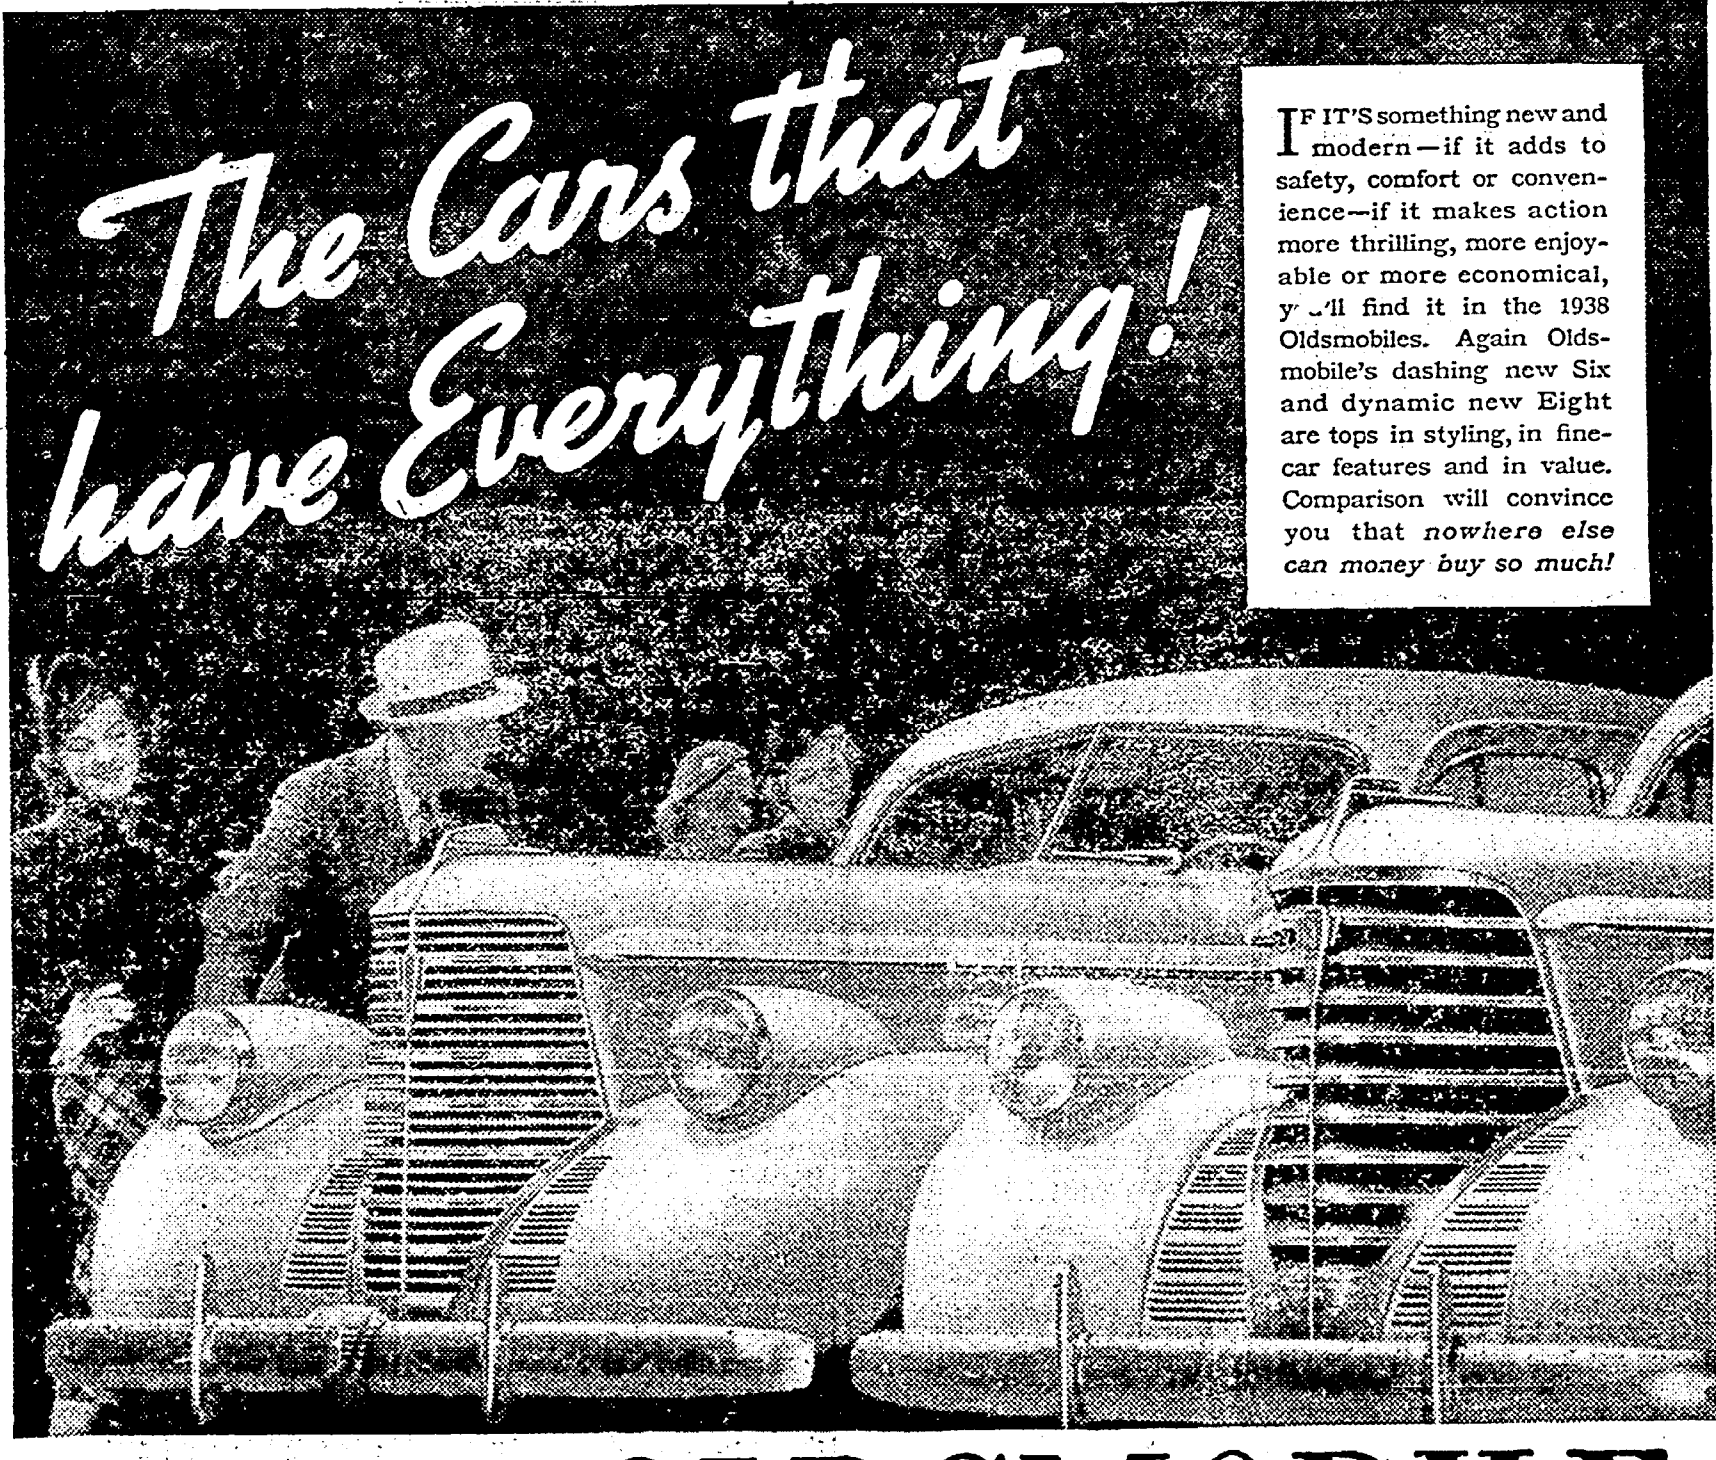

Use All-Brans regularly: eat two tablespoons every day and drink plenty of water. The results will delight you! Every grocer sells All-Brans. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

BIRTHDAY AT LAST

IT DIDN'T really matter the exact day when Top Notch's celebration took place because they had all made up their minds at Willy Nilly's suggestion to celebrate their birthdays at this time of the year.

Now Top Notch was so much better that he was ready to go to his Store but Willy Nilly felt that it was wise for him to wear a little sweater. Top Notch didn't care about wearing the sweater, and began to say he didn't need it—but in his rooster heart he knew he would feel more comfortable with it on and he had been vain enough!

So they all went over to Top Notch's General Store now. There he saw how beautifully Willy Nilly and the bears had painted it for him. There he saw the new sign that had been put out for him. There he saw how his shelves had been arranged and that the Puddle Muddlers had gathered fresh supplies for him.

He felt guilty, seeing how much they had done, when he thought of how his only idea had been to look his best. But he was happy. They did care for him. They had done so much for him.

"Many, many happy returns of the day!" they shouted and cawed and barked and growled and bleated and quacked.

"Thank you, thank you so tremendously," he said. "I don't deserve all this but perhaps that makes it all the more wonderful—and I'll try to deserve it from now on." Then he cackled: "Sweet Face and Christopher haven't had their birthday celebrations yet!"

Tomorrow—"Sweet Face's Birthday."

Today's Talk
By George Matthew Adams
AFLOAT FROM ALL MOORINGS

IT is an inspiring sight to see a great ship upon the sea—far from all sight of land. It looks so free. It chooses its direction and its port. It sails so smoothly in calm and is always ready for the fiercest storm. It takes what comes.

The boat at its mooring, however, gives out no inspiration. There it is, idle and swaying with the waves, like the man tied to a job that he only stays by through force of circumstances, with no desire to breast the unknown or untried.

Afloat from all the moorings of dependence and indecision, there is room to stretch the mind, to unfold all the elements of hope and courage, and to scatter one's spirit to the four winds of the world.

Afloat, and untied in mind, you can thrill with all that adventure, is able to give, and that mind of yours can feed upon the ripe fruit of all ages and all climes. From the simple and unlearned you can pick up nuggets of golden truths, and among the rich in heart you can select many a treasured moment of peace and beauty.

The ablest in understanding are those who have sailed afar and walked about numberless countries; and among all types of men. The widely read have touched the essence of minds that have striven, suffered, and won, as well as lost. And perhaps from those who have lost has come the great understanding!

The boy wholly "upon his own" soon experiences the growing pains of a maturing experience. Afloat from all the moorings of home, his imagination is challenged, and every hidden force is stirred, and for the first time, perhaps, he hears the whispering of the man that is within him.

The most hopeful sign of the times is that of breaking away from political party moorings, and the tendency of large numbers of people to be free from moored ideas.

Personality wilts at a mooring as quickly as the fish dies when thrown upon the sand, robbed of its free life in the water. Seek space. Be free!

TWO'S COMPANY
By MARGARET GUION HERZOG

Nina, Junior Leaguer and ex-debutante, impulsively married David, hoping to end her love for her stepfather.

Richard, the charming well-tailored stepfather, returns from a cruise with his wife and races to Nina's side.

Honey, Nina's gay, youthful mother, is wild about Richard and does not suspect the strong attraction between him and Nina.

David, a bright young auto salesman on a small salary, adores Nina but they argue over money matters.

Chapter 39
In Richard's Renault
Nina woke up with the feeling that it was her birthday, or Christmas, or something wonderful.

She felt a little like the Hester must have, on the evening of that eventful Hunt ball; that she had been wandering around in a mist, trying to find her way, trying to make the best of it . . . but that, now, suddenly, everything was clear. Sunshine was burning through the murkiness, and she knew where she wanted to go.

Nina stretched deliciously, without opening her eyes. She felt alive and young, and excited, and calm, all at the same time. And presently—when her stretching limbs encountered no obstacle—she knew that she was alone.

A quick peek affirmed it. David had gone. It didn't trouble her that he was still angry enough to have left without a word. It simplified everything.

She relaxed and shut her eyes again, and thought of Richard, and Richard, and nothing else. She went over everything he had said the night before: "God! How I've waited for this!" "I've been half mad with wanting you . . ." and "I'm back, lovely. I'll make you happy . . ." Of course, he would!

casual, just the same. The extremely long wheel base was no more trouble to him than it had been a shorter car; and he looked as though he belonged in its foreign smartness. . . . So did Nina.

She felt as if she had been away on a long journey, and was home again. He said: "Look around you, notice and remember everything. This is a big day for us . . . my sweet Nina."

"I was . . . I'll never forget today." She never did. "We feel better about it, now that we have both really tried and failed . . . don't we, Nina?"

She had wanted him to say that. "Yes, Richard. . . . I wanted you to say that."

"He reached over and took her hand. Placed it, under his, on the thin, black steering wheel.

"We've both said lots of very wise, solemn things about this love of ours, haven't we, angel? But now, we're just going to be—happy."

"Yes, Richard. Happy." He said: "Are you going to make me—really happy, little Nina? . . . More than just talking about it?"

The little pulse at her wrist began to beat, frantically, as she answered: "Anything, darling . . . anything you want . . ."

"You know what I want, Nina . . . what I've wanted for so long that it seems like a dream of heaven to hear you say it will come true . . ."

"You'd better give me back my hand, Richard, and just—drive for a while, or we shall have an accident . . . I can't stand having you say things like that, without being kissed . . ."

"I think I could arrange that," smiling. But she said: "No, no. Go on. Later . . . Where are we going, by the way?"

"Oh, up toward Tarrytown," vaguely. It was a play. It was so exciting that it couldn't be true. . . . (Copyright, 1937, Margaret Herzog)

In Richard's arms, tomorrow, Nina tells him she wants to belong to him.

READING
The Magic Highway
To Adventure

Recent Books for Boys and Girls
There was a time when the children's Book Week slogan, "Reading—The Magic Highway to Adventure," would have had less meaning. "Good" books were too often dull, and non-fiction was fed to children under compulsion.

Today's books are different. For one thing, young people want realism, perhaps because today's reality is more amazing than yesterday's imagination. Jules Verne has come true. Worth-while books are exciting; and reversely, the up-to-date thriller is plausible and informative.

"Consider any list of the current juveniles. The scene of Elsie Singmaster's new book for girls, "The Loving Heart" (Houghton Mifflin), is laid in Gettysburg at the time of the Civil war. The story of Berry Pontifrac will give any young reader not only a standard for fine courage, but a vital knowledge of what the battle of Gettysburg really meant.

Early Charleston in the time when erstwhile soft-living English gentry were re-adjusting themselves to a provincial life of Indian and pirate raids, is the scene of action in "Bepi Marlowe of Charles Town" (Viking), a junior novel by Elizabeth Janet Grey. Another of the year's books for girls is Marguerite de Angeli's Pennsylvania Dutch story, "Henner's Lydia" (Doubleday Doran).

"The Spy Mystery," by S. S. Smith (Harcourt Brace), is based on facts known about the "bespizornil" wandering wild boys of Russia. John Mackworth recently won the English prize competition for a modern boy's book with "The Raid Of The Terrible" (Lippincott), which treats of a dread machine that bores beneath the bank of England vaults. Junior biographies are as interesting as those for adults. Julia Davis in "No Other White Men" describes the epic expedition of Lewis and Clark in story form (Dutton). The boyhood and schooldays of nine famous men, including Rockefeller, Theodore Roosevelt and Dwight Morrow, are recounted in a Harcourt Brace publication, "How They Started," edited by Elizabeth B. Hamilton.

The pages of Joseph Cottler and Haym Jaffe's "Map Makers" (Little Brown), an account of exploration and discovery from the days of Marco Polo to William Beebe, are filled with adventure in every land. Cottler also tells in "Champions Of Democracy" (Little Brown), of the American struggle for freedom and tolerance through the stories of its leaders.

For the 4th to 8th Grade
Fine books suited to the younger reader vary from Andrew Lang's "Tales Of Troy and Greece" (Longmans Green), to the amusing "Lost Chickens Henry" (Morrow), a story by Ned Andrews of two young cowboys who find themselves possessed of a gold mine.

Outstanding are "Harry In England," by Laura E. Richards, author of "Captain January" (Appleton); "Moonshine In Candle Street" by Constance Savery (Longmans), and "The Biography Of An Arctic Fox" by Ernest Thompson Seton (Appleton).

1st to 4th Grade—Interest
For the child who has lately learned to read for himself, there are Phil Stong's rollicking "High Water" (Dodd Mead), and Kurt Wiese's "Picture Book Of Animals" (Coward McCann), a book of more depth than the title would indicate.

E. Nesbit's "Wet Magic," in which four children have adventures in a sea-bottom kingdom. Is the newest addition to her stories about magic. With Christmas approaching, Blanche Jennings Thompson's "Bible Children" with its Kate Seredy illustrations, must be mentioned (Dodd Mead), as well as the latest edition of Clement Moore's famed "The Night Before Christmas," illustrated by Reginald Birch (Harcourt Brace).

Books for Little Folk
The gay picture story books for very small children all have enchanting quality. Inez Horgan's books and the ones by Munro Leaf become increasingly popular. "The Adventures Of Happy Cushionale" by Siera Bosa (Dutton), Clare T. Newberry's "Babette" (Harpers) and "Sakimura" by Zhenya Gay (Viking) are recent illustrated animal stories.

The journeys of a certain "Mr. Lobster" who wanted to find out what was on the land make a book of fuller context for the five-year-old, "The Curious Lobster," written by Richard Hatch (Harcourt Brace).

So they all went over to Top Notch's General Store now. There he saw how beautifully Willy Nilly and the bears had painted it for him. There he saw the new sign that had been put out for him. There he saw how his shelves had been arranged and that the Puddle Muddlers had gathered fresh supplies for him.

He felt guilty, seeing how much they had done, when he thought of how his only idea had been to look his best. But he was happy.

They did care for him. They had done so much for him.

"Many, many happy returns of the day!" they shouted and cawed and barked and growled and bleated and quacked.

"Thank you, thank you so tremendously," he said, "I don't deserve all this but perhaps that makes it all the more wonderful—and I'll try to deserve it from now on." Then he cackled: "Sweet Face and Christopher haven't had their birthday celebrations yet!"

Tomorrow—"Sweet Face's Birthday."

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams—

AFLOAT FROM ALL MOORINGS

IT is an inspiring sight to see a great ship upon the sea—far from all sight of land. It looks so free. It chooses its direction and its port. It sails so smoothly in calm and is always ready for the fiercest storm. It takes what comes.

The boat at its mooring, however, gives out no inspiration. There it is, idle and swaying with the waves, like the man tied to a job that he only stays by through force of circumstances, with no desire to breast the unknown or untried.

Afloat from all the moorings of dependence and indecision, there is room to stretch the mind, to unfold all the elements of hope and courage, and to scatter one's spirit to the four winds of the world.

Afloat, and untied in mind, you can thrill with all that adventure is able to give, and that mind of yours can feed upon the ripe fruit of all ages and all climes. From the simple and unlearned you can pick up nuggets of golden truths, and among the rich in heart you can select many a treasured moment of peace and beauty.

The ablest in understanding are those who have sailed afar and walked about numberless countries; and among all types of men. The widely read have touched the essence of minds that have striven, suffered, and won, and as well lost. And perhaps from those who have lost has come the great understanding!

The boy wholly "upon his own" soon experiences the growing pains of a maturing experience. Afloat from all the moorings of home, his imagination is challenged, and every hidden force is stirred, and for the first time, perhaps, he hears the whispering of the man that is within him.

The most hopeful sign of the times is that of breaking away from political party moorings, and the tendency of large numbers of people to be free from moored ideas.

Personality wields at a mooring as quickly as the fish dies when thrown upon the sand, robbed of its free life in the water. Seek space. Be free!

TWO'S COMPANY

By MARGARET GUION HERZOG

Nina, Junior Leaguer and ex-debutante, impulsively married David, hoping to end her love for her step-father.

Richard, the charming well-tailored stepfather, returns from a cruise with his wife and races to Nina's side.

Honey, Nina's gay, youthful mother, is wild about Richard and does not suspect the strong attraction between him and Nina.

David, a bright young auto salesman on a small salary, adores Nina but they argue over money matters.

Chapter 39
In Richard's Renalt
Nina woke up with the feeling that it was her birthday, or Christmas, or something wonderful.

She felt a little the way Hester must have, on the evening of that eventful Hunt ball: that she had been wandering around in a mist, trying to find her way, trying to make the best of it . . . but that, now, suddenly, everything was clear. Sunshine was burning through the murkiness, and she knew where she wanted to go.

Nina stretched deliciously, without opening her eyes. She felt alive and young, and excited, and calm, all at the same time. And presently—when her stretching limbs encountered no obstacle—she knew that she was alone.

A quick peek affirmed it. David had gone.

It didn't trouble her that he was still angry enough to have left without a word. It simplified everything.

She relaxed and shut her eyes again, and thought of Richard, and Richard, and nothing else.

She went over everything he had said the night before: "God! How I've waited for this!" "I've been half mad with wanting you . . ." and "I'm back, lovely. I'll make you happy. . . ." Of course, he would!

She pondered on the queer, deadening effect of heat and dish-washing, and poverty that had actually made her think she had got over him.

She wished that last night could happen all over again, when she wasn't quite so hysterical, so that she could appreciate to the full, the wonder of his return . . . still loving her, still wanting her, to the exclusion of everything else.

And, although Nina didn't dwell on the practical side of things, she couldn't help realizing how well the details were working out: they had to give up the apartment, anyway; and Gracie would be just around the corner, waiting to comfort David, to assure him that Nina had never been the right girl for him . . . to cook and clean and be merry about it, and, some day, make him a marvelous wife, herself.

When Nina came to the thought of Honey, she could think of no justification for what she was planning to do, but just then the telephone rang, and it was Richard.

All thoughts of her mother were driven from Nina's mind.

A Date For Tea
"Good morning . . . angel."

Oh, how had she ever lived without the sound of his voice!

What was he wearing . . . his black dressing-gown with the silver dragons? Or had he—oh, surely, he must have bought himself some new, marvelous things at Charvet, in Paris.

Richard was talking in a low voice probably from the telephone closet in the hall . . . well, soon now, all that would be over. There would be nothing to hide. Everyone would know.

He was saying: "I got a Renault, abroad. It'll be off the boat by noon . . . We'll motor out of town this afternoon for tea. I shan't be here, this morning, when you come, darling . . . pick you up about 3:30 at your place . . . ?"

"Yes . . . 3:30, then."

They said goodbye, directly after that. He couldn't talk, evidently; but Nina dressed for the ordeal of her visit to Honey, with her heart thumping wildly. She sang little snatches of songs, and raced But-ton around the block, so that he came in panting, and regarded Nina from the coolness of the tiled floor in the bathroom, with surprised and loving eyes.

It had been nearly five months since Nina had been to the house on 74th street.

She hadn't thought of anything except how happy she was, on the way over; but now, as she stood on the familiar stoop, as Bridget welcomed her—red and freckled from her summer vacation—as she heard Honey's voice calling from above, Nina had a sinking feeling in her insides at the thought of the bomb she was going to fling into this tranquil house.

It grew worse as she entered her mother's room and saw her, in a sea of tissue paper, surrounded by new finery . . . laughing . . . holding out her arms . . .

"Nina . . . Baby!"

Nina's "Honey!" was almost a sob. But she mustn't think about it—yet.

It was just as it had always been, after Honey's yearly returns from Europe.

Presents for Nina. Showing off of new clothes. Anecdotes . . .

Honey looked marvelously well . . . tanned and plump as ever, but asking, as she did every year, if Nina didn't think she looked thinner.

Marie, raving over the new undies. Honey dashing into the library with still more little animal figures for that crowded room . . . Flowers arriving, in stacks of white boxes . . .

All Honey's favorite dishes for lunch, sent up by old Margaret in the kitchen, tickled quite silly with her bag and scarf and lamé blouse from Paris.

Incessant telephone calls . . .

Sometimes in the past Nina had felt a little hurt that Honey was always so full of her own trips, so eager to show off her new things, that she didn't have much time to ask what Nina had been doing. Oh, she would ask all right, but usually with her eyes on her trunks . . . or her mind on something else . . . and then she would say, reproachfully, the next day: "Now, baby, you haven't told me a thing about yourself!" . . . just as though it had been Nina's fault.

But, today, she was glad of it. When Honey asked about herself and David, Nina said: "Now, this is your day, darling . . . let's talk about you." And that was what Honey really wanted. The rest would come later, when the first excitement of homecoming had worn off.

About 2:30, Nina managed to get away. She had to take a taxi, her arms were so full of presents: underwear, and perfume, and things for the house, that made her feel badly, like Italian linen, and some marvelous old decanters . . . and a dressing-gown for David, too . . .

A little of her early-morning thrill had worn off. It was not easy to be carrying back presents from a mother you were planning to supplant . . . to an apartment and a husband you were planning to leave . . .

"Anything You Want?"

But an hour later, Richard at her door brought the thrill all back again.

When he kissed her, it was as though he poured a burning, life-giving wine into her tired body.

He followed her into the bedroom while she put on her hat and found a fresh pair of gloves; and though he devoured her with his eyes, she could not help noticing that he did not mess her up again—as David would have done—once she was fixed.

The afternoon was fresh—it had rained in the morning, and then it had stopped.

The Renault was maroon, with picknick upholstery . . . quite divine-looking. Richard drove with an ease that was not exactly David's careless abandon, but was expert and casual, just the same. The extremely long wheel base was no more trouble to him than if it had been a shorter car; and he looked as though he belonged in its foreign smartness. . . . So did Nina.

She felt as if she had been away on a long journey, and was home again.

He said: "Look around you, notice and remember everything. This is a big day for us . . . my sweet Nina."

"I was . . . I'll never forget today," She never did.

"We feel better about it, now that we have both really tried and failed . . . don't we, Nina?"

She had wanted him to say that. "Yes, Richard. . . . I wanted you to say that."

He reached over and took her hand. Placed it, under his, on the thin, black steering wheel.

"We've both said lots of very wise, solemn things about this love of ours, haven't we, angel? But now, we're just going to be—happy."

"Yes, Richard. Happy."

He said: "Are you going to make me—really happy, little Nina? . . . More than just talking about it?"

The little pulse at her wrist began to beat, frantically, as she answered: "Anything, darling . . . anything you want . . ."

"You know what I want, Nina . . . what I've wanted for so long that it seems like a dream of heaven to hear you say it will come true . . ."

"You'd better give me back, my hand, Richard, and just—drive for a while, or we shall have an accident . . . I can't stand having you say things like that, without being kissed. . . ."

"I think I could arrange that," smiling.

But she said: "No, no. Go on. Later. . . . Where are we going, by the way?"

"Oh, up toward Tarrytown," vaguely.

It was a play. It was so exciting that it couldn't be true. . . .

In Richard's arms, tomorrow, Nina tells him she wants to belong to him.

READING

The Magic Highway
To Adventure

Recent Books for Boys and Girls

There was a time when the children's Book Week slogan, "Reading—The Magic Highway to Adventure," would have had less meaning. "Good" books were too often dull, and non-fiction was fed to children under compulsion.

Today's books are different. For one thing, young people want realism, perhaps because today's reality is more amazing than yesterday's imagination. Jules Verne has come true. Worth-while books are exciting; and, reversely, the up-to-date thriller is plausible and informative.

Consider any list of the current juveniles.

The scene of Elsie Singmaster's new book for girls, "The Loving Heart" (Houghton Mifflin), is laid in Gettysburg at the time of the Civil war. The story of Berry Pontifrac will give any young reader not only a standard for fine courage, but a vital knowledge of what the battle of Gettysburg really meant.

Early Charleston in the time when erstwhile soft-living English gentry were re-adjusting themselves to a provincial life of Indian and pirate raids, is the scene of action in "Bepi Marlowe of Charles Town" (Viking), a junior novel by Elizabeth Janet Grey. Another of the year's books for girls is Marguerite de Angel's Pennsylvania Dutch story, "Henner's Lydia" (Doubleday Doran).

"The Spy Mystery," by S. S. Smith (Harcourt Brace), is based on facts known about the "besprizorn," the wandering wild boys of Russia. John Mackworth recently won the English prize competition for a modern boy's book with "The Raid of The Terrible" (Lippincott), which treats of a dread machine that bores

Junior biographies are as interesting as those for adults. Julia Davis in "No Other White Men" describes the epic expedition of Lewis and Clark in story form (Dutton). The boyhood and schooldays of nine famous men, including Rockefeller, Theodore Roosevelt and Dwight Morrow, are recounted in a Harcourt Brace publication, "How They Started," edited by Elizabeth B. Hamilton.

The pages of Joseph Cottler and Haym Jaffe's "Map Makers" (Little Brown), an account of exploration and discovery from the days of Marco Polo to William Beebe, are filled with adventure in every land. Cottler also tells, in "Champions Of Democracy" (Little Brown), of the American struggle for freedom and tolerance through the stories of its leaders.

For the 4th to 8th Grade

Fine books suited to the younger reader vary from Andrew Lang's "Tales Of Troy and Greece" (Longmans Green), to the amusing "Lost Chicken Henry" (Morrow), a story by Ned Andrews of two young cowboys who find themselves possessed of a gold mine.

Outstanding are "Harry In England," by Laura E. Richards, author of "Captain January" (Appleton); "Moonshine In Candle Street" by Constance Savery (Longmans), and "The Biography Of An Arctic Fox" by Ernest Thompson Seton (Appleton).

1st to 4th Grade Interest

For the child who has lately learned to read for himself, there are Phil Stong's rollicking "High Water" (Dodd Mead), and Kurt Wiese's "Picture Book Of Animals" (Coward McCann), a book of more depth than the title would indicate.

PENNSYLVANIA HAS MORE THAN 100 BIG CAVES

Harrisburg. — Tourists visiting Pennsylvania find its caves a thrilling source of interest.

What they visit are those which have been fully explored, tested for safety, and electrically lighted.

The State Publicity commission pointed out today, however, that there are more than 100 major caverns known to exist in Pennsylvania and that geologists claim that there are probably hundreds of others—their locations yet to be discovered, either by accident, or in the course of quarrying operations.

Their black labyrinthine depths, always exuding an air of mystery, Pennsylvania caves are the source of numerous legends.

Probably the earliest known is Penn's cave, Centre county, scene of Indian tales dating back more than 200 years.

There, in the cold, black waters of the Karodhina, or Penn's creek, perished Malachai Boyer, a French explorer, who dared to love the daughter of an Indian chieftain.

In punishment, Boyer was exiled to the cave, and kept prisoner without food or clothing by an implacable Indian guard station at the only entrance.

Many times Malachai swam to the entrance, begging for food or for release, but each time he was pushed back into the waters, forced to retreat within the cave. He finally died of starvation.

Now, after costly excavation, Penn's cave has two entrances, and boats sail through the cave and on a lake outside.

Other well-developed commercial caves are:

Hippie cave, Bedford county; Wonderland caverns, Bedford county; Crystal cave and Onyx cave, Berks county; Veiled Lady cave and Woodward cave, Centre county; Indian Echo cave, Dauphin county; Baker caverns, Franklin county; Historic Indian cave, William Penn caverns, Huntingdon county; Alexander caverns and Seavra cave, Mifflin county; and Lost cave, Northumberland county.

Others not yet developed but equally fascinating to adventurous explorers include:

Hinemane cave, Armstrong county; New Paris cave, Bedford county; Dragon cave, Pinnacle caves, Sinking Spring cave, Berks county; Arch Spring cave, Hollidaysburg cave, Berks county; Durham cave, Bucks county; Bolling Springs cave, Lehigh county; Cumberland cave, Lehigh county; Fessenden cave, Franklin county; Maple cave, Huntingdon county; Pequa cave, Lancaster county; Alensville and Nagay caves, Mifflin county; Hartman cave, Monroe county; Port Kennedy cave, Montgomery county; Cold Air cave, Northumberland county; Girty's cave, Perry county; Boyer cave, Snyder county; Hales cave, Union county; Bear cave, Vestmoreland county, and many others.

Geologists explain most of the caves were formed ages ago by the weak carbonic acid in rainwater roding limestone. Running through natural crevices, the flowing water gradually enlarged them to their present proportions. In some caves, the process is still going on.

Stalactites, stalagmites, and other formations were formed by the slow accumulation of particles of the cave limestone built up by dripping water. The stalactites hang downward, the stalagmites mount upward on the floor of the cave.

In a few instances, minor caves are formed by cleavage where giant blocks of sandstone slipped downhill, leaving outcrops along hillsides.

Welty said it was imperative that the two-day convention take action in outlining a legislative policy.

KIDNAPPING TRIO THOUGHT TRACED TO PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, Nov. 17 (AP).—While New York car that police believed might contain three convicted kidnapers who escaped Tuesday from upstate New York out-distanced a police patrol in Philadelphia early today.

Policeman James Britt and James Gormley said the car bore New York license 1C8755, the same as the one driven by three men who stopped at the White Horse hotel, at Jonestown, near Harrisburg, Tuesday night to ask for a road map showing routes to Philadelphia.

Britt and Gormley, who did not know at the time that the state police teletype had broadcast a description of the car seen at Jonestown, sped after the machine as it careened past a corner.

They gained sufficiently to see the license number, they said, and then the fugitive car disappeared. Neither Britt nor Gormley saw how many men were in the car.

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 17 (AP).—State police, local officers and Federal agents today concentrated their grim manhunt for three prisoners convicted of the 1933 John J. O'Connell, Jr., kidnapping in this city after a local detective reported a man claimed he was held up by the armed trio.

Detective Sergeant Arthur Holden of the Syracuse police declared that John King said he definitely identified three men who held him up Tuesday night as Percy Geyer, 34; John Oley, 36, and Harold Crowley, 35. The convicts who staged a daring escape from the Onondaga county jail at nearby Jamesville, New York, early Tuesday morning.

King said, according to Holden, the three men entered his car and forced him at gun point to drive toward Manlius. When the men saw troopers stopping cars ahead, King was quoted as saying, he was ordered to take a side road and circle back to Syracuse.

There, King was reported as saying, the men made him drive to his home and forced his mother to prepare a meal. After eating, King said, the men fled from the house.

The report sent state troopers and police into Syracuse rooming houses and buildings, searching every known criminal hide-out, in the hopes of tracking down the prisoners who were held up six guards in fleeing from the Jamesville prison where they were held pending appeals from federal prison sentences for the kidnapping.

They drove in a commandeered car after kidnapping a guard to Syracuse, abandoned the automobile, released the keeper unharmed and disappeared.

At Auburn, the state commission of correction closed hearings into the escape with a statement of Correction Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney that there were many discrepancies in the stories told by the jail guards and others questioned.

PETER PAN CAST TO GIVE COMEDY

The Peter Pan Players of the Biglerville high school will present the three-act comedy, "Come Out of the Kitchen," at 8 o'clock Thursday and Friday evenings. The play is based on the original story of the same name by Alice Duer Miller.

The Dangerfield family of the old aristocracy of Virginia find themselves financially embarrassed and in desperation, rent their home to a wealthy Yankee millionaire for six weeks. The one stipulation in the lease about which the Yankee is most decided is that a competent staff of white servants shall be engaged for the duration of his sojourn at the home. On the day of his arrival, the expected servants have not put in an appearance and the four young people conceive the idea of posing as the domestic staff. They all adopt new names and Olivia, the younger daughter, guides the scheme. Their behavior as servants is so out of the ordinary, that amusing complications soon arise. Olivia's charm and beauty impress Crane above everything else and the story continues through a maze of delightful incidents until the real identity of the heroine is finally disclosed.

Each act of the play is laid in a different setting. All sets were designed by Bruce Nary and built by the students of the new vocational department under the supervision of Prof. Cecil Snyder, head of the department. John Bringham, John Lawver and Clifford Garretson are assisting with the stage work. Reba Shue and Lena Boyer are property mistresses and Ruth Peters, Mildred Kane and Dorothy Orner, business managers for the play. The costumes are in charge of Jeanne Bucher and all art work has been done by the students of the art department under the supervision of Miss Velma Hykes.

The play cast is as follows: "Olivia Dangerfield," alias "Jane Ellen," Josephine Black; "Elizabeth Dangerfield," alias "Araminta," Renee Shetter; "Paul Dangerfield," alias "Smithfield," Lewis Wiseman; "Charles Dangerfield," alias "Brindiebury," Hugh Bringham; "Randy Weeks," Thomas Enck; "Amanda," the colored mammy, Jane Walter; "Burton Crane," the Yankee, Bruce Nary; "Mrs. Falkner," Elizabeth Starner; "Cora," her daughter, Janet Carbaugh; "Solon Tucker," the attorney, William Beal; "Tom Lefters," the poet, Dean Fink.

The play is being directed by Miss H. Louise Creasy.

Gunderman to Learn Trial Fate Thursday

Somerset, Pa., Nov. 17 (AP).—Slim Stacy Gunderman, one-time state policeman convicted of second degree murder for the death of Frank Monaghan, will learn Thursday whether he gets another chance for freedom.

Pale and worn by nine months of confinement in the Somerset county jail since his trial, young Gunderman found encouragement today in Justice George W. Maxey's comment that he was "inclined to accept" Gunderman's story that he beat the elderly hotelkeeper in self defense.

The 64-year-old Monaghan died early on the morning of September 12, 1936, in the Fayette county detective headquarters where he had been taken for questioning about the slaying of a county detective. Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti, asserting Monaghan was tortured to death in a third degree, launched an investigation that resulted in the indictment of 12 men.

Near the end of the hearing, the justice scolded Margiotti for saying that his directed verdict in the case of Anthony Sanute, superior to Gunderman the night Monaghan died, was "Pennsylvania's greatest miscarriage of justice."

DRIFT 400 MILES ON ICE

Moscow, Nov. 17 (AP).—Four Russian Arctic campers, riding an ice floe down from the North Pole, reported by radio today that they were only about 125 miles off the northeastern coast of Greenland. In Moscow, Dr. Otto Schmidt, leader of the aerial expedition that established the camp 13 miles from the pole nearly six months ago, said the four men probably would be taken off in January before their ice raft reached open sea and danger of breaking up. The campers had drifted more than 400 miles.

HARRY BEAMER, IN ARMY, MAKES 2-DAY AIR TOUR

Harry R. Beamer, son of Mrs. Jennie C. Beamer, Aspers, recently completed a two-day trip by air from New York city to Scott field, Illinois. The trip was made in connection with the routine training program of the 97th observation squadron, regular army air corps, of which Beamer is a member.

Beamer rode as passenger in one of three army observation airplanes which flew in military formation from Long Island to Scott field, near St. Louis, Missouri, Tuesday night. Stops enroute included Middletown and Pittsburgh, Dayton, Ohio, and Chanute field, Illinois. The return trip on Wednesday was made by way of Indianapolis, Cleveland and Buffalo.

As a feature of the overnight stay at Scott field, the aerial visitors inspected the air corps' lighter-than-air activities at that station.

Use was made throughout the trip of both Army and civilian airports, and the jaunt was terminated by the 350-mile triangular night navigation hop between Buffalo, Albany, and New York city, using Department of Commerce lighted airways and radio facilities.

A total of 16-flying hours were logged by the airmen in the two days.

Purpose of this training flight was to familiarize personnel with the latest Army and commercial aids in terminal radio facilities, airway and airport traffic control, etc.

Beamer has served nearly six years' foreign service with the Air Corps in the Hawaiian islands, where he was engaged in personnel administrative duties. While in the islands, he was active in all outdoor sports, and competed extensively in long distance running events. He returned to the United States in July 1936, and is now assigned to the flight records section.

TRIO TO PROBE DE SCHWEINITZ RELIEF FIGURES

Harrisburg, Nov. 17 (AP)—A month's investigation, on which hangs the political fate of Karl De Schweinitz, secretary of Public Assistance, started today by order of Governor George H. Earle.

Three men, picked for their accounting ability, were assigned to scan the five-months old Department of Assistance for any sign of inefficiency that might explain part of a $26,000,000 deficit De Schweinitz himself predicted the department would have by the end of the biennium, June, 1939.

Thus the behind-the-scenes row centering around De Schweinitz and the administration of relief entered the showdown stage a day before Earle embarked for a trip to Sweden. He said he would announce his decision December 17, the day after he returns.

The Governor was closeted all day Tuesday with De Schweinitz. In the conference was Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller, sister of United States Senator Joseph P. Guffey, a national Democratic committee woman. Earle said Mrs. Miller brought the charges of inefficiency and "politics" against De Schweinitz' department.

Also present were the men who run the financial end of the state, including Auditor General Warren R. Roberts and Deputy Treasurer J. Warren Mickle.

The conference was called for De Schweinitz to prove the charges false—or quit.

Apparently, little was shown one way or the other except for the $26,000,000 figure, according to Earle's announcement Tuesday night. A staunch defender of De Schweinitz in times before, Earle had this to say:

"I have not reached a conclusion whether or not he (De Schweinitz) is a good manager." The Governor said he had the "highest confidence" in his "personal integrity and honesty of purpose."

The Department of Assistance, a new cabinet office, combining unemployment relief, old age and blind assistance, and aid to dependent children, was given $138,000,000 by the 1937 legislature. It has averaged spending $1,000,000 a month more than the estimate. This, Earle said, was what gave him his greatest concern.

De Schweinitz, the Governor said, blamed the impending deficit on curtailment of federal work relief. Mrs. Miller preferred charges Earle added, that there was considerable "chiseling" by relief recipients and that a number of jobs in the department were being duplicated.

As to politics, Earle added:

"The complaint is that the Department of Public Assistance takes the attitude that any time a Democrat is proposed for a job, it's politics, but if a Republican is mentioned, that's not politics."

Many employees of the Republican administration that preceded Earle have been retained because the Governor proclaimed a policy of "keeping politics out of relief." De Schweinitz was a Republican but later registered Democratic.

The investigation will be conducted by Donald N. Livingston, Public Utility commissioner, as chairman; Harry Margolis, Deputy auditor general, both of whom are certified public accountants, and William Sponsler, 3rd, assistant secretary of the budget.

Two State Towns of Same Name Claim Foster Birthplace

Harrisburg—Where was Stephen Collins Foster born?

Controversy over nativity of the Pennsylvania composer of such famous plantation songs as "Kentucky Home" and "Old Black Joe," has flared anew, the State Publicity commission revealed today.

Although Lawrenceville, Allegheny county, claims the honor and Pittsburgh has built a memorial to Foster, the town of Lawrenceville, Tioga county, disputes the question.

The North Tier community lays claim to being the birthplace of the wandering song-master largely on the basis of the fact that Foster attended the nearby Athens Free academy as a lad of 16. Files of the Athens Gleaner and the Athens Gazette for the year 1840 tell of his musical career at the school.

"Toga March" by Foster is obviously dedicated to his boyhood association with that region.

Foster music is a feature of the publicity commission's local radio programs presented during recent weeks and of those being prepared for next spring.

The current dispute arises as state historians are still vainly trying to settle similar rival claims between Cresson and Gallitzin. Both these Cambria county communities claim to be the birthplace of Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary, first Arctic explorer to reach the North Pole.

Marine's Anniversary Recalls Start in State

Harrisburg—United States Marines observing 162 years of service to the country this month are reminded that their long list of exploits afloat and ashore in all parts of the globe began in the Keystone state.

The Pennsylvania State Publicity commission pointed out today the first two battalions of these sea soldiers were organized in Pennsylvania by Congress in 1775. It was in Philadelphia that units of this force embarked on their first expedition across the seas.

Major Samuel Nicholas, one of Pennsylvania's foremost patriots of the time, was the Marines' first leader. He was the first to establish their dual duties by commanding them aboard ships of the newly-organized Continental Navy, and leading them ashore in New Jersey conflicts under George Washington.

The famed U. S. Marine Band was organized in Pennsylvania and gave its first concert in Philadelphia just before the National Capital was shifted to Washington in 1800.

During the World War, more than 4300 Marines were recruited in Pennsylvania. In the last fiscal year 300 native sons enlisted in the Corps—a greater number than from any other state.

No Action Planned Against Man Who Fled Jail in 1904

Sunbury, Pa., Nov. 17 (AP)—The home town where a 16-year-old boy escaped from jail in 1904 decided today he could keep the freedom he has had for 33 years.

District Attorney Robert Fortney said no action would be taken to bring back Harry Burns, 49, a respected citizen and father of eight children, who surrendered in Chicago Tuesday, saying his mother-in-law had constantly held the escape "over his head."

Fortney said the court concurred in his decision not to return Burns to complete the three and one-half

STATE IS READY TO CLEAR ROADS OF FIRST SNOW

Harrisburg, Nov. 17 (AP)—Murky November skies reminded the Pennsylvania Department of Highways today that its big snow-shovelling job is just around the corner.

So Warren Van Dyke, the secretary, sent out the order that annually moves into action a force sometimes as large as 35,000 men.

The first state-wide blanket of snow has yet to fall but once it does—the highways force will start out with its cinders to make the lanes safe for motor traffic.

For weeks, engineers have pored over maps showing the 40,000 miles of road and figuring out which will have to be hit first when snow flies.

Thousands of tons of cinders were stored at strategic locations.

On slippery places, engineers have found the cinders—chemically treated with calcium chloride and rock salt to eat into the snow—the best material.

The snow removal work will cover about 18,000 miles of road, about 1,200 miles more than the department undertook to keep clear last year.

Last winter the state spent $2,175,000 to remove snow from state highways; $705,000 for rural roads; $90,000 for borough streets. This figure was much lower than the all-time high of 1935-36 when frequent storms cost the state $5,771,271, or an average of $3.20 for each registered motor vehicle.

The department figures it is good business to keep the roads clear. Van Dyke pointed out that the longer roads are covered by ice and snow, the worse condition they'll be in when the thaw arrives and the state's spring "reconditioning" program will be that much more expensive.

Snow fences will play their part

CAPE COD "TURKEY"

DIPPING into brown swells that champed hungrily at the frosted strakes of his dory, the Cape Codder crouched to his cold work with wet, streaming lines till a catch of fish had been made. Good cod was his Thanksgiving "turkey." With dull skies sinking heavily upon him and the first ghostly shafts of a nor'easter hissing from a smoky horizon, he would lift his crinkled eyes shoreward, thankful for the fish that meant both food and feast.

CAPE COD "TURKEY"
DIPPING into brown swells that champed hungrily at the frosted strokes of his dory, the Cape Codder crouched to his cold work with wet, streaming lines till a catch of fish had been made. Good cod was his Thanksgiving "turkey." With dull skies sinking heavily upon him and the first ghostly shafts of a nor'easter hissing from a smoky horizon, he would lift his crinkled eyes shoreward, thankful for the fish that meant both food and feast.
Sometimes, it seems, we come by our blessings too easily. We take the gifts a more progressive civilization has brought us with a complacency that robs us of deeper thrills. And the thrills are there, with but a slight exercise of imagination.

44-HR. HEARINGS ARE CONTINUED

Harrisburg, Nov. 17 (AP)—Representatives of steel—a basic Pennsylvania business, awaited their turn today, while spokesmen of mines and quarries, an clay, glass and stone industries pressed pleas for work-week law.

Steel men gathered Tuesday in a meeting behind closed doors at the state Chamber of Commerce. They exchanged views and were addressed by Ernest J. Poole, president of the chamber.

Poole fell dead a few minutes after addressing the conference. He had urged that the law be studied "with calm common sense."

No definite action was taken by the steel men and no date was set for their appearance before the State Industrial board. Central and eastern Pennsylvania coal producers, represented by Frank G. Smith, told the board the mines were operating under a union contract which provided for a 35-hour week, "except in certain instances covered by contracts."

Spokesmen for the other industries pleaded that they represented seasonal trade, subject to changing weather and varying demand.

Harrisburg, Nov. 17 (AP)—The national Grange convention considered today the report of its foreign relations committee recommending policies directed at preventing the United States from becoming involved in war.

Declaring the most important question before the United States today is how to safeguard the peace of our nation, the report outlined this seven-point program:

"We oppose any entangling foreign alliances that sooner or later may lead to war.
"We are unalterably opposed to any way of aggressive nature.
"We approve an armament program to fully protect our nation from invasion.
"We oppose use of armament to protect investments in foreign lands.
"We have stronger neutrality legislation to include—embargoes on basic war materials, and also prohibit American ships from carrying supplies to nations at war.
"We favor an act to draft capital and industry as well as manpower, thus taking all profits out of war.
"We approve settlement of inter-

Flashes of Life

GETTING WARMER

Camden, N. J.—Firemen broke into a house in response to an alarm and were about to leave because they could find no flames. "Hey, boys," shouted a passing truck driver, "when you get through with that, there's another around the corner." The firemen unwound their hose again and went to work.

MOUTHFUL

Richmond, Ind.—Asked by friends what he wished for his birthday, Malcolm Parshall, 22, laughed and said, "a hamburger." He got it. The sandwich was 14 inches in diameter, two and a half inches thick and contained two and a half pounds of hamburger.

SALT OF THE EARTH

Oakland, Calif.—Now all Kenneth Sizelove needs is a pepper mine. He already has laid claim to "all the salt in the oceans—and all the unclaimed inhabitants of all the oceans," to boot. He did not say what he was going to do with the salt when he paid a $1 county recording fee.

HE'S UP; HE'S DOWN

Kansas City.—Grocer H. T. Heds-path threw up his hands when a gunman pointed a revolver at him. "No you don't," said the robber. "Hands down." Apparently fearing upraised hands would attract attention, he took $20 and fled.

FAST WORKER

Chicago.—Being friendly, peniless and a widower, Benjamin F. Hutchinson, 63, wanted to spend his last years in a clean, warm federal penitentiary. That was the explanation he gave when he was seized by a watchman after smashing a window of the suburban Evanston postoffice. Hutchinson was held to the grand jury on a charge of damaging government property.

court attaches haven't quite recovered from this one: L. M. Grant, of Toronto, Ontario, was fined $10 for reckless driving. He smiling, thanked the officer who arrested him, the clerk who collected the fine, then shook hands all around and said he would visit here again.

FINDS STOLEN SAFE

Sharon, Nov. 17 (AP).—Harold Jennings went hunting for rabbits and found a 600-pound safe, stolen from an ice cream cone manufacturing plant a month ago. The safe had been pried open and $5 in cash removed.

$4,025 Awarded for Five
Acres of Land on Island

Pittsburgh, Nov. 17 (AP).—Assistant United States Attorney Stanley Granger said today a federal commission's award of $4,025 for five acres of land adjoining the Montgomery Island dam on Ohio river in Beaver county might have "significant effect" on future flood control work.

The heirs of the Caroline Emerick estate of Beaver, had demanded $25,000 for the tract and a special board of viewers had set the value of the land at $9,000.

"Reasonable" awards for condemned property, Granger said, would help in obtaining sufficient land for an extensive flood control system on the Ohio river and its tributaries.

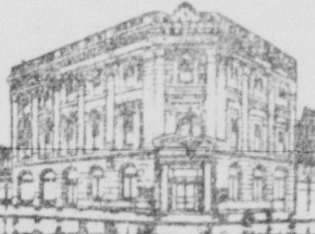

2 LOCKED IN CAR

Somerset, Nov. 17 (AP).—Startled trainmen, attracted by the honking of automobile horns, found two frightened youths locked up in a freight car containing new automobiles. The boys, Charles Perrini and Charles Collins, of Republic, declined to say how or when they got in the car, which had been sealed in Uniontown.
